

house down, they were rattling it so badly." They took computers and a copy of the same commercial pitch. Her son had been interested in collaborating on the venture, and he, too, became a potential target. "They believed everybody was conspiring," Roark says. "For years, I couldn't talk to my own son without worrying that they'd say I was trying to influence his testimony." Although she has been fighting cancer, she has spoken with him only sparingly since the raid.

The agents seemed to think that the commercial pitch contained classified information. Roark was shaken: she and the others thought they had edited it scrupulously to insure that it did not. Agents also informed her that a few scattered papers in her old office files were classified. After the raid, she called her lawyer and asked, "If there's a disagreement on classification, does intent mean anything?" The question goes to the heart of the Drake case.

Roark, who always considered herself "a law-and-order person," said of the raid, "This changed my faith." Eventually, the prosecution offered her a plea bargain, under which she would plead guilty to perjury, for ostensibly lying to the F.B.I. about press leaks. The prosecutors also wanted her to testify against Drake. Roark refused. "I'm not going to plead guilty to deliberately doing anything wrong," she told them. "And I can't testify against Tom because I don't know that he did anything wrong. Whatever Tom revealed, I am sure that he did not think it was classified." She says, "I didn't think the system was perfect, but I thought they'd play fair with me. They didn't. I felt it was retribution."

Wiebe, the retired analyst, was the most surprised by the raid—he had not yet been contacted in connection with the investigation. He recalls that agents locked his two Pembroke Welsh corgis in a bathroom and commanded his daughter and his mother-in-law, who was in her bathrobe, to stay on a couch while they searched his house. He says, "I feel I'm living in the very country I worked for years to defeat: the Soviet Union. We're turning into a police state." Like Roark, he says of the raid, "It was retribution for our filing the Inspector General complaint."

Under the law, such complaints are confidential, and employees who file them are supposed to be protected from retaliation. It's unclear if the Trailblazer complaint tipped off authorities, but all four people who signed it became targets. Jesselyn Radack, of the Government Accountability Project, a whistle-blower advocacy group that has provided legal support to Drake, says of his case, "It's the most severe form of whistle-blower retaliation I have ever seen."

A few days after the raid, Drake met Binney and Wiebe for lunch, at a tavern in Glenelg, Maryland. "I had a pretty good idea I was next," Drake says. But it wasn't until the morning of November 28, 2007, that he saw armed agents streaming across his lawn. Though Drake was informed of his right to remain silent, he viewed the raid as a fresh opportunity to blow the whistle. He spent the day at his kitchen table, without a lawyer, talking. He brought up Trailblazer, but found that the investigators weren't interested in the details of a defunct computer system, or in cost overruns, or in the constitutional conflicts posed by warrantless surveillance. Their focus was on the Times leak. He assured them that he wasn't the source, but he confirmed his contact with the Sun, insisting that he had not relayed any classified information. He also disclosed his computer password. The agents bagged documents, computers, and books, and removed eight or ten boxes of office files from his basement. "I felt incredibly violated," he says.

For four months, Drake continued cooperating. He admitted that he had given Gorman information that he had cut and pasted from secret documents, but stressed that he had not included anything classified. He acknowledged sending Gorman hundreds of e-mails. Then, in April, 2008, the F.B.I. told him that someone important wanted to meet with him, at a secure building in Calverton, Maryland. Drake agreed to the appointment. Soon after he showed up, he says, Steven Tyrrell, the prosecutor, walked in and told him, "You're screwed, Mr. Drake. We have enough evidence to put you away for most of the rest of your natural life."

Prosecutors informed Drake that they had found classified documents in the boxes in his basement—the indictment cites three—and discovered two more in his e-mail archive. They also accused him of shredding other documents, and of deleting e-mails in the months before he was raided, in an attempt to obstruct justice. Further, they said that he had lied when he told federal agents that he hadn't given Gorman classified information.

"They had made me into an enemy of the state just by saying I was," Drake says. The boxes in his basement contained copies of some of the less sensitive material that he had procured for the Inspector General's Trailblazer investigation. The Inspector General's Web site directs complainants to keep copies. Drake says that if the boxes did, in fact, contain classified documents he didn't realize it. (The indictment emphasizes that he "willfully" retained documents.) The two documents that the government says it extracted from his e-mail archive were even less sensitive, Drake says. Both pertained to a successor to Trailblazer, code-named Turbulence. One document listed a schedule of meetings about Turbulence. It was marked "unclassified/for official use only" and posted on the N.S.A.'s internal Web site. The government has since argued that the schedule should have been classified, and that Drake should have known this. The other document, which touted the success of Turbulence, was officially declassified in July, 2010, three months after Drake was indicted. "After charging him with having this ostensibly serious classified document, the government waved a wand and decided it wasn't so classified after all," Radack says.

Clearly, the intelligence community hopes that the Drake case will send a message about the gravity of exposing government secrets. But Drake's lawyer, a federal public defender named James Wyda, argued in court last spring that "there have never been two documents so benign that are the subject of this kind of prosecution against a client whose motives are as salutary as Tom's."

Drake insists, too, that the only computer files he destroyed were routine trash: "I held then, and I hold now, I had nothing to destroy." Drake, who left the N.S.A. in 2008, and now works at an Apple Store outside Washington, asks, "Why didn't I erase everything on my computer, then? I know how to do it. They found what they found."

Not everyone familiar with Drake's case is moved by his plight. A former federal official knowledgeable about the case says, "To his credit, he tried to raise these issues, and, to an extent, they were dealt with. But who died and left him in charge?"

In May, 2009, Tyrrell proposed a plea bargain: if Drake pleaded guilty to one count of conspiring to violate the Espionage Act and agreed to cooperate against the others, he would get a maximum of five years in prison. "They wanted me to reveal a conspiracy that didn't exist," Drake says. "It was all about the Times, but I had no knowledge of the leak." Drake says that he told prosecutors, "I refuse to plea-bargain with the truth."

That June, Drake learned that Tyrrell was leaving the government. Tyrrell was a Republican, and Drake was hopeful that a prosecutor appointed by the Obama Administration would have a different approach. But Drake was dismayed to learn that Tyrrell's replacement, William Welch, had just been transferred from the top spot in the Justice Department's public-integrity section, after an overzealous prosecution of Ted Stevens, the Alaska senator. A judge had thrown out Stevens's conviction, and, at one point, had held Welch in contempt of court. (Welch declined to comment.)

In April, 2010, Welch indicted Drake, shattering his hope for a reprieve from the Obama Administration. But the prosecution's case had shrunk dramatically from the grand conspiracy initially laid out by Tyrrell. (Welch accidentally sent the defense team an early draft of the indictment, revealing how the case had changed.) Drake was no longer charged with leaking classified documents, or with being part of a conspiracy. He is still charged with violating the Espionage Act, but now merely because of unauthorized "willful retention" of the five documents. Drake says that when he learned that, even with the reduced charges, he still faced up to thirty-five years in prison, he "was completely aghast."

Morton Halperin, of the Open Society Institute, says that the reduced charges make the prosecution even more outlandish: "If Drake is convicted, it means the Espionage Law is an Official Secrets Act." Because reporters often retain unauthorized defense documents, Drake's conviction would establish a legal precedent making it possible to prosecute journalists as spies. "It poses a grave threat to the mechanism by which we learn most of what the government does," Halperin says.

The Espionage Act has rarely been used to prosecute leakers and whistle-blowers. Drake's case is only the fourth in which the act has been used to indict someone for mishandling classified material. "It was meant to deal with classic espionage, not publication," Stephen Vladeck, a law professor at American University who is an expert on the statute, says.

The first attempt to apply the law to leakers was the aborted prosecution, in 1973, of Daniel Ellsberg, a researcher at the RAND Corporation who was charged with disclosing the Pentagon Papers—a damning secret history of the Vietnam War. But the case was dropped, owing, in large part, to prosecutorial misconduct. The second such effort was the case of Samuel L. Morison, a naval intelligence officer who, in 1985, was convicted for providing U.S. photographs of a Soviet ship to Jane's Defence Weekly. Morison was later pardoned by Bill Clinton. The third case was the prosecution, in 2005, of a Defense Department official, Lawrence Franklin, and two lobbyists for the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee. Franklin pleaded guilty to a lesser charge, and the case against the lobbyists collapsed after the presiding judge insisted that prosecutors establish criminal intent. Unable to prove this, the Justice Department abandoned the case, amid criticism that the government had overreached.

Drake's case also raises questions about double standards. In recent years, several top officials accused of similar misdeeds have not faced such serious charges. John Deutch, the former C.I.A. director, and Alberto Gonzales, the former Attorney General, both faced much less stringent punishment after taking classified documents home without authorization. In 2003, Sandy Berger, Clinton's national-security adviser, smuggled classified documents out of a federal building, reportedly by hiding them in his pants. It was treated as a misdemeanor. His defense lawyer was Lanny Breuer—the official overseeing the prosecution of Drake.

Jack Goldsmith, a Harvard law professor who served in the Bush Justice Department, laments the lack of consistency in leak prosecutions. He notes that no investigations have been launched into the sourcing of Bob Woodward's four most recent books, even though "they are filled with classified information that he could only have received from the top of the government." Gabriel Schoenfeld, of the Hudson Institute, says, "The selectivity of the prosecutions here is nightmarish. It's a broken system."

Mark Feldstein, a professor of media and public affairs at George Washington University, warns that, if whistle-blowers and other dissenters are singled out for prosecution, "this has gigantic repercussions. You choke off the information that the public needs to judge policy."

Few people are more disturbed about Drake's prosecution than the others who spoke out against the N.S.A. surveillance program. In 2008, Thomas Tamm, a Justice Department lawyer, revealed that he was one of the people who leaked to the Times. He says of Obama, "It's so disappointing from someone who was a constitutional-law professor, and who made all those campaign promises." The Justice Department recently confirmed that it won't pursue charges against Tamm. Speaking before Congress, Attorney General Holder explained that "there is a balancing that has to be done . . . between what our national-security interests are and what might be gained by prosecuting a particular individual." The decision provoked strong criticism from Republicans, underscoring the political pressures that the Justice Department faces when it backs off such prosecutions. Still, Tamm questions why the Drake case is proceeding, given that Drake never revealed anything as sensitive as what appeared in the Times. "The program he talked to the Baltimore Sun about was a failure and wasted billions of dollars," Tamm says. "It's embarrassing to the N.S.A., but it's not giving aid and comfort to the enemy."

Mark Klein, the former A.T. & T. employee who exposed the telecom-company wiretaps, is also dismayed by the Drake case. "I think it's outrageous," he says. "The Bush people have been let off. The telecom companies got immunity. The only people Obama has prosecuted are the whistle-blowers." ♦

WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange rails against Facebook, says it's a spy tool for US government

BY Nina Mandell
DAILY NEWS STAFF WRITER

Maybe he's a MySpace guy.

WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange called Facebook "the most appalling spying machine ever invented" in an interview with Russia Today, pointing to the popular social networking site as one of the top tools for the U.S. to spy on its citizens.

"Here we have the world's most comprehensive database about people, their relationships, their names, their addresses, their locations, their communications with each other and their relatives, all sitting within the United States, all accessible to US Intelligence," he said. "Facebook, Google, Yahoo, all these major U.S. organizations have built-in infaces for US intelligence.

"Everyone should understand that when they add their friends to Facebook they are doing free work for the United States intelligence agencies," he added.

The comments were a bit strange, coming from the founder of a website best known for pushing spilling secret information.

In an email to the Daily News, a Facebook spokesman denied the company was doing anything that they weren't legally obligated to do, saying that "the legal standards for compelling a company to turn over data are determined by the laws of the country, and we respect that standard."

"We don't respond to pressure, we respond to compulsory legal process," the spokesperson wrote. "There has never been a time we have been pressured to turn over data -- we fight every time we believe the legal process is insufficient."

In any event, many Facebook users have been increasingly concerned about the sharing of their information.

In 2010, three Democratic senators asked the FTC to look at the social networking site's information-sharing policies.

The Wall Street Journal has reported that popular Facebook apps like Farmville and Causes also shared users' information with advertising and tracking companies.

Concerns about information-sharing has seemingly done little to dissuade the more than 250 million people who use Facebook - including someone who created an official WikiLeaks page on the site.

More than 1.72 million people clicked that they like it.

Assange is currently in England, awaiting extradition to Sweden to face sexual assault charges.

SPRING RECRUITING INSTRUCTIONS

We are excited to announce that a number of employers will be participating in Spring Semester Recruiting. We have already posted a few opportunities and anticipate posting more in the coming weeks. Even if you are already familiar with the recruiting process, please take a few moments to carefully read these instructions.

1. What is Recruiting? Recruiting is a process whereby CSO facilitates hiring by collecting resumes (RC) and/or coordinating with employers to interview students on campus (OCI). Unlike job postings, where the student is responsible for submitting her/his application materials directly to the employer, students interested in recruiting positions apply via Symplicity. This process is called "bidding."
2. Recruiting is broken down into multiple sessions. Each session has different bid start and end dates. Please pay careful attention to bid deadlines, as we will not allow anyone to bid after the bid date has expired. If you would like a CSO staff member to review your materials before you bid, please be sure to notify CSO and upload your materials to Symplicity before the review date. This will be explained in each recruiting posting.
3. To identify recruiting opportunities, log into Symplicity and go to the Recruiting Tab. Select a session and hit the review button for additional details.
4. To apply for a position you must first upload the requested application materials to Symplicity. Properly label these documents. For example, DoeJaneResume, DoeJane-CL-JAG, DoeJaneWritingSample.
5. Once uploaded, your materials go in queue to be approved by our office. If you submit your materials after the CSO review date, we will approve them as-is.
6. Once approved, follow the same steps as #3, click on the proper application materials, and hit "apply."

SESSION 8 DEADLINES

CSO Document Review: April 4th - April 8th

(If you want your application materials reviewed by a CSO staff member, you must do the following by April 8th: 1) Notify Norell Albanis (nalbanis@avemarialaw.edu) or Darnie Sizemore (dasizemore@avemarialaw.edu) by email; 2) Upload your application materials to Symplicity.)

Student Bids: April 8th - April 13th (Attach application materials to the posting)

Application Deadline: April 13th at 5 p.m.

Student Pre Select: May 2nd - May 6th (OCI's only – choose an interview time)

Participating Employer(s):

 Immaculata Law Firm, LLC – RC (3L and Class of 2010)*

Chico's Corporate Counsel - OCI - 4/21 (2L)*

Future sessions will be announced at a later time. Arrangements are being finalized for those employers committed to recruiting later.

Note: There are many "Job Postings" in Symplicity too. Students must apply for these positions on their own. Application instructions are contained within these job postings.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR FREE LEGAL CLINIC SATURDAY, APRIL 9TH

The Collier County Bar Association (CCBA), the CCBA Foundation and Legal Aid Service of Collier County host two free legal clinics per year. The first of 2011 will be held on Saturday, April 9th at the Legal Aid Offices (4125 Tamiami Trail East, Naples) from 10:00 a.m. until 12:00 p.m. Volunteers will need to report no later than 9:30 a.m.

If the inquiries regarding this event are any indication, The Clinic will be quite busy. That means that the legal community's support is needed to make the clinic successful. Attorneys in all practice areas have been asked to work the event. AMSL students can volunteer as well to perform administrative tasks and serve as interpreters for Hispanic and Creole members of the community seeking advice at the Clinic. This is an easy way to support the general community and the CCBA, and to mingle with members of the local legal community. Please consider volunteering on Saturday morning, April 9th.

If you are interested in helping, please contact Lisa Mead at lmead@colliercountybar.org.

(Pro Bono service hour credit will be given to any 2L or 3L student who participates.)

St. Louis Diversity Job Fair - August 19th - 20th

Classes of 2012 and 2013 may participate

Registration Deadline: May 13th (We recommend registering as soon as possible to ensure you have a spot.)

Cost: $25 registration fee

www.stldiversityjobfair.com

The Job Fair will kick off with a Welcome Reception on Friday, August 19, from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. and Interviews will be held Saturday, August 20, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Specific details re the locations of both events will be posted on the St. Louis Diversity Job Fair web site as soon as they become available.

The deadline for law student registration and employer bidding is Friday, May 13, 2011. All students must be registered by this date in order to participate in the Job Fair. It is recommended that students register as soon as possible. Law students can register for the 2011 St. Louis Diversity Job Fair by going to <https://law-sldjf-csm.symplicity.com/>. When registering, it is required that students provide the name of a contact in the school's Career Services office who will be available to assist with coordinating the students' participation in the Job Fair. Please list Darnie Sizemore as your AMSL contact. Students are also required to pay a $25 registration fee. A PayPal invoice link will be sent to each student requesting payment before they are allowed to upload their resume and submit employer bids. If a student withdraws from participating in the Job Fair before the cancellation deadline, then a full refund of the registration fee will be provided.

It may take up to one business day to get your initial registration approved. Registrations are approved manually and students should allow the Job Fair administrator time to review the registration materials before their registration is complete. The same request for patience applies when resumes and additional documents are submitted.

Students interested in attending the Job Fair may visit the St. Louis Diversity Job Fair website at www.stldiversityjobfair.com to obtain additional information. They may also contact Danielle Carr at (314) 335-6833 or Jennifer Sloop at (314) 259-5888.

House Republican Leadership Asked Senator to Place "Secret Hold" on Federal Whistleblower Bill

on April 04, 2011

GAP and On The Media's Campaign Ends with Only Two Suspected Senators Remaining

(Washington, D.C.) – This past weekend, the Government Accountability Project (GAP) and the NPR show On The Media (OTM) announced an end to their "Blow the Whistle" campaign, which sought to identify which U.S. Senator placed a 'secret hold' during the final hours of the last session of Congress, killing the Whistleblower Protection Enhancement Act (WPEA). The crowd-sourcing effort, which relied on citizens to contact their respective senators and report back findings, led GAP and OTM to eliminate all but two senators during the three month campaign.

A shocking revelation about the 'secret hold' emerged during the campaign. According to GAP, based on multiple sources inside congressional offices, one of the two remaining senators killed the bill at the request of Republican leadership in the House of Representatives.

GAP Legal Director Tom Devine commented, "Whistleblowers risk their professional lives to fight government fraud, waste and abuse. How can taxpayers trust any politician who campaigns on that pledge, and then secretly kills rights for government workers who risk their careers to deliver it? House leadership owes taxpayers an explanation as to why they started sabotaging those campaign promises just weeks after the election, before they even began governing. Even more important, Speaker John Boehner owes taxpayers a commitment that this will not happen again."

GAP and OTM are able to confirm, based primarily on information from our supporters and listeners (respectively), that all but two senators were not responsible for the hold on the bill. The final, remaining suspects are Republican Jon Kyl of Arizona, and Republican Jeff Sessions of Alabama. Both Senate offices have steadfastly refused to identify which one formally placed the hold. But the distinction is academic. Four times now since 2004, these two senators have taken turns placing holds that blocked Senate action on the WPEA.

Late last week, GAP ruled out another senator -- Republican James Risch of Idaho -- based on several conversations with his office. Although Sen. Risch refuses to deny placing the hold (his policy is simply to not comment on secret holds), GAP ruled him out when learning from multiple sources that the hold was placed by Senate Republican leadership at the request of House Republican leadership. Senator Risch's office confirmed to GAP that the senator had no policy objections to the WPEA last Congress, nor was he working with Senate leadership on the legislation. That left Senators Kyl and Sessions, both part of the Senate leadership team.

"If there's a silver lining to this procedural loophole, it's that the hold turned a harsh spotlight on the dismal state of federal whistleblower protections," said GAP Legislative Campaign Coordinator Shanna Devine. "The WPEA is expected to be reintroduced in the Senate shortly, and now senators have heard directly from constituents about the importance of this legislation."

The Make It Safe Campaign also has been briefing the staff of new House Oversight and Government Reform Committee Chairman Darrell Issa (R.-Cal.) about the reform's provisions, and has been impressed by their serious investment of energy to match promises of passage this Congress.

Background

During the waning days of the 111th Congress (December 2010), the Senate passed the WPEA, or S. 372, with unanimous support. The bill was delayed in the House of Representatives for several days, due to unfounded concerns about how the bill would positively affect WikiLeaks. In fact, the WPEA language, at that point, strengthened internal channels for national security workers to report concerns safely to qualified members of Congress. Essentially, the bill would have dissuaded national security employees from going to WikiLeaks by giving them a real and viable option to expose corruption, which they do not currently enjoy.

A bipartisan House agreement was brokered in the 11th hour, and legislation that would only extend coverage to non-intelligence employees for unclassified whistleblowing disclosures passed in the House by unanimous consent. With mere hours left in the lame duck session, the WPEA was sent back to the Senate for a final vote, but this time died at the behest of one anonymous, secret hold.

In January, in partnership with GAP, OTM built an online crowd-sourcing database, calling upon citizens to contact their respective senators, and demand to know if they placed the hold.

The complete results of the campaign, with citizen documentation for each senator, can be viewed here: <http://www.wnyc.org/blowthewhistle>

The response was overwhelming. After six weeks, the campaign was responsible for eliminating all but five senators from the "suspect list." That number whittled down to three a few weeks ago, with confirmed denials from Sens. McConnell's and Vitter's offices.

The Die Isn't Cast

By Charlie Cook, National Journal

It's hard to imagine a situation much worse than the one that Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee Chairwoman Patty Murray and Executive Director Guy Cecil will face in the 2012 elections. The numbers are pretty ominous - 23 Democratic seats at risk against only 10 for Republicans. The Democratic seats in this class were last up in 2006, a year when the party had the political equivalent of a 70 mph tailwind. The 10 Republicans who won that year were a hardy breed, elected in the face of a strong headwind.

Given last November's six-seat loss for Democrats, which left them with a 53-47 advantage (independents Bernie Sanders of Vermont and Joe Lieberman of Connecticut caucus with the Democrats), their hold on the majority looks extremely precarious heading into 2012. In truth, the party's losses would have been worse had it not been for the aggressive effort waged by the DSCC under the stewardship of then-Executive Director J.B. Poersch.

As grisly as the "macro" picture appears for Senate Democrats, it's premature to extend that view to individual seats. In this business, surprises always seem to be just around the corner. One need look no further than last year's election returns to see some examples of where, despite a horrific political environment, Democratic senators managed to hold on to seats that looked like goners.

When I met New Castle County Executive Christopher Coons, the Democrats' Senate nominee in Delaware, it was universally assumed that he would be facing then-Rep. Michael Castle, a moderate and the most popular Republican in the state, in the general election. Coons was extremely impressive; it was not hard to believe that he would make it to Congress someday, just not in 2010. Castle was the only Republican who could - and almost definitely would - defeat him. Delaware Republicans had other plans, though. Instead of tapping in the political equivalent of a 1-inch gimme putt, they pulled out a Callaway driver and slammed the ball as far into the woods as they possibly could, nominating Christine "I am not a witch" O'Donnell.

Or take Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid. His job-approval numbers were so horrific for so long that it looked like he had no plausible path to another term. In retrospect, Reid won reelection on filing-deadline day when, by hook or by crook, he avoided facing a first- or even second-tier Republican challenger. It wasn't by chance; Reid clearly intimidated more-established Republicans who knew how scrappy he was.

Murray, of Washington state, herself has a good tale to tell. Republicans got their first-choice nominee in Dino Rossi, who twice had fallen just short of getting elected governor. He was exactly the candidate that the GOP wanted. But a combination of the incumbent's first-rate campaign, Rossi's heart seemingly not being in the race (he should have held off and run for governor in 2012 instead), and the GOP wave not quite reaching the West Coast contributed to an easy reelection victory for Murray.

See all upcoming events>>

Finally, there is the story of Cecil, the DSCC's new executive director. He took over as chief of staff for appointed Sen. Michael Bennet of Colorado, a very bright former investment banker and Denver school superintendent. Critics noted that Bennet had never been elected as much as dog catcher and that he was an intellectual with questionable political instincts; many suspected he would not even survive the Democratic primary, where he faced a former speaker of the Colorado House. Bennet dispatched the more experienced pol with ease, and then went on to win the general election, skillfully exploiting an unexpectedly weak Republican who ran an unimpressive campaign. Bennet turned out to be a much stronger candidate than almost anyone imagined, and Cecil designed and guided what many pros say was the most sophisticated Democratic Senate campaign of the cycle.

To be sure, Democrats face enormous challenges in 2012 and 2014, and it's pretty unlikely that their Senate majority will survive. The party will undoubtedly lose a lot of races over the next two elections, but as last year's experience shows, tenacious candidates and perfectly executed campaigns, with an assist from unexpectedly weak GOP candidates, provide opportunities that are not obvious this early in the cycle.

The Atlantic Wire highlights a couple of the deals today, including one attention-grabber involving a 2005 effort by the government of Thailand to purchase fighter jets. The Thais considered Russia's Sukhoi model, Sweden's Saab and Lockheed Martin's F-16. But there was a catch: They didn't want to pay cash, but were willing to give up 80,000 tons of frozen chicken. After some hemming and hawing, according to the leaked cables, Lockheed actually agreed to consider the deal. But it was too late. After a military coup, the Thais ended up going with the Swedish jets.

Date: Monday, February 7, 2011 11:25:07 AM

Hi Everyone

We have released another video. A long time coming. We plan to do more shortly.
Thank you to Justin & Bruno for coming out to Bowral one afternoon and making this spontaneous video with us.
Children thoroughly enjoyed your company as we did.

You can see how much weight Arthur has put on since March 2010 after being followed, the three serious attempts on his life over the past 8 months or so, the last time with 3 year old Xanthe in the back-seat of the family car and the 12 serious death threats to the family over the past 18 months or so.
Its effected him much more than he realised.

Even though he is a dedicated raw-food eater (no meat or dairy or cooked food) he hasn't managed the change in his lifestyle as well as he could have.
He used to fast walk 2 hours per day at least 5 days per week.
He has probably had around 7 walks since March 2010,
He stays in doors for weeks on end working 16 to 18 hours per day for Love For Life.
He feels his life is of better use serving LIFE over the net, doing what he does, reaching out to anyone he can help wake up than being locked up or dead and lost to the cause of true freedom.
Fiona looks beautiful as always.

WELCOME TO LOVE FOR LIFE. Love For Life is committed to the creation of Do No Harm, Kin Domain communities throughout the world. Kindoms, where we grow our own food and support one another away from the endless rules and obligations we currently struggle under, are the only way to achieve lives of peace, joy and abundance for all and take care of Earth so that Earth flourishes. Love For Life shines a light on the darkness of the world we live in so that we may all recognise that darkness and until there is nowhere left for it to hide. March 2005 - Arthur & Fiona Cristian 7th Feb 2011, 837pm, Sydney time. Please read "The Ten Steps Of Kindom" here: <http://loveforlife.com.au/node/5788> to see how we achieve the dream of Kindom. This email was written in 2007 as a rough, sketchy idea that we intentionally left alone while we continued our search for truth and the remedy to our problems. We have come a long way since then, particularly in the ways we now word things so we are shortly to update it into a full working model. We will also be posting more information on the topics covered, either in other videos or by adding to this one.

Once we all recognise fraud for what it really is in all its forms, to TRUTH we return. If we are all willing to go where truth takes us we will never walk the path of harm ever again. Comprehending the information we share will help you to see how and why we are exposing the fraud, routing out all the fraudsters, without getting caught up in the fraud and in the lives of the fraudsters. At least, worst case scenario, in gradual steps we are removing our lives out of the fraud. We didn't know we were in hell until we woke up in the middle of it. We all need to use our brains and go where the logic of truth takes us. The smartest, easiest path towards truth, one that is fail safe, is the path of Do No Harm. Then, its just about becoming more and more conscious each day of the harm we support and cause and learning how to withdraw our energy from such harm-doing. Put everything we think, feel and do to the test. Go where truth takes us by testing all beliefs, faiths and opinions. Scrutiny of all information is key to our true freedom. If we don't offer up everything we think, feel and do for scrutiny we will never know for sure if we are supporting, condoning and promoting fraud. What if you are living a lie and are lost to it or are in denial of it? What if the way you think, feel and do is a lie?

As a carpenter you need the tools of the trade, making sure they are in very good condition. If you want freedom, peace, abundance, joy and Do No Harm for all, first get the tools that will make this dream come true while learning how to use them. This all comes down to a change in thinking, a letting go of tools we acquired to perform in "The System" and acquiring new tools for the creation of a paradise we dream for. So if you want to be practical make sure you have acquired practical tools for the job. Almost all intentional communities self-destruct within 15 years, many within 5 years. Why? Because they brought the tools of "The System" with them to create paradise! Their thinking was generally distorted and the good intentions that started off the dream were quickly eroded by all the bad habits they brought with them from "The System".

Please read our articles to explore all the insights we have been unravelling and putting to the test to be sure we are on the path of Do No Harm:

Love For Life Mailing List

15th July 2010

Hello Everyone,

Because the Love For Life mailing list and its mail-list server has been under attack for more than four months now, we have had to implement temporary changes by using another mail list server. Each time we send a post or the monthly membership reminder goes out on the 1st of every month, AOL.com (America On Line) is being notified that the Love For Life mail list server is being used to spam its clients, causing our webmasters internet service provider to disconnect service. The Love For Life webmaster then has to go through the red tape gauntlet to get his internet back on line and remove the black-listing of his mailing list server which hosts other mail lists besides ours.

Love For Life Mailing List

15th July 2010

For the last few years, Love for Life has had two main mailing lists, four smaller ones and been involved in many hundreds of discussion groups. We are finding that we simply cannot keep up with all of these so are making some changes in an effort to keep on top of things. We are combining all the addresses on our mailing lists into one so that anything we send out goes to everyone.

Unsubscribe/Subscribe

If you wish to unsubscribe /subscribe

1. Please go here: <http://loveforlife.com.au/content/09/05/14/mailling-list>
2. Scroll down to User Options: Your email address:
3. Enter your email address
4. Then go below Choose an action: and select unsubscribe or subscribe
5. Press Go
6. You will then receive an email from the Love For Life mailing list to confirm your unsubscribe or subscribe request
7. Press reply and make sure the email has been sent to the Love For Life mailing list
8. You will then receive a confirmation email that you have been unsubscribed from or subscribed to the Love For Life mailing list

If you have any difficulties Unsubscribing/Subscribing your email address, send us an email with REMOVE/UNSUBSCRIBE or JOIN/SUBSCRIBE in the subject/header and we will do it for you.

If you do not want to get put back on the Love For Life mailing list, please make sure your email address is not being sent to us by other groups you may be involved in. In our efforts to network with as many people as possible, any new email address that comes to us through discussions, debates, comments, requests for assistance, etc, is automatically added to the Love For Life mailing list. If you find your email address back on the list, please just follow the prompts to remove your address again. We tested unsubscribe/subscribe on three occasions and each time it took less than 1 minute to complete the process. Remember, we are all about freedom, truth, peace, abundance, joy, Do No Harm and "Community Immunity" for ALL. We are not your enemy.

With the temporary mailing list server we are now using, there will be no more monthly password reminders being issued on the 1st of every month. Instead, we will attempt to provide a brief subscribe/unsubscribe message with instructions/prompts at the bottom of all our posts.

The Love For Life mailing list is private, all registrations can ONLY be seen by the Love For Life mailing list administrators, the list is not for sale or given to other 3rd parties. It is not used for spamming and is ONLY used for announcements / broadcasts sent by Fiona & Arthur Cristian or the Love For Life webmaster or someone authorised by us in case of an emergency.

Comments - Blog - Forum

This mailing list is not used as a discussion group and any attempts to post will not go anywhere. If you wish to instigate a discussion, you are welcome to do so on the Love For Life website either as a forum or a blog or by just posting a comment.

The Remote Control Of New Age Drones

Hi Everyone,

We copied a Benjamin Fulford post 1st February 2011 and a statement from a Wordpress Blog.

Briefly: Fiction cannot perform, it needs MAN to think fiction and put LIFE into fiction, hence a piece of paper can be scribbled and stamped on as it is moved from desk to desk to desk to desk, to computer to internet to computer to fax machine to desk to desk to filing cabinet but the piece of paper cannot do anything without us. It has done nothing, just as currency does nothing, just as boom and bust economies do not happen without men and women creating them. If 6 billion children were brought up in nature without exposure to civilisation, "The System", or to anyone exposed to "The System", they would never think any thoughts of "The System" and they wouldn't create anything of "The System". They wouldn't know any of the information of war, hatred and lies, or the ascension process, or earth is a planet, or galactic beings. Living in nature, the information of nature would be all that they would think and therefore the world they created would be in the image of the information of nature. Their brain would be in that image and nothing else. This is LIFE. We are living in a world of information that is not of LIFE, not of nature, not reality, and this not-LIFE, not truth, not-peace, not-freedom, not-abundance, not-joy information is what we are focusing on and creating.

Anything not of LIFE, cannot do anything without MAN's thought. Those behind "The System" NEED us to think the way they want us to think because then we create the world in the image they want. Right now, we are creating the world in the image of guns, drones, bombs, war, hatred, prejudice, destruction, food shortages, prices escalating, can't-make-ends-meet, poverty, homelessness, all of which creates the world of chaos that is "The System". At the same time we are creating the Remedy to the Chaos.

The whole communications network of "The System", including media, Hollywood, advertising, New Age, religions, internet and the education system including university, is there to control our brains. It has no other purpose. This includes the majority of books published in "The System". "The System" has its Freemasonic "Good Guys" and its Freemasonic "Bad Guys", men and women we can point the finger at, lay the blame on, and those who appear to rescue us from the "Bad Guys", giving us a "remedy" so that we do not have to take responsibility for changing the way things are. This pull between good and bad is what creates the pull into the false consciousness of duality, as discussed in the article: Awakening To Paradise - Part One To Part Seven: <http://loveforlife.com.au/node/7805>

When we step back and look at the big picture, this brainwashing tactic operates just like the army personnel in this 2 minute 8 Second video: <http://loveforlife.com.au/node/7856> operating their drone planes from thousands of miles away. The only "ascension" is going to be the "ascension" into the new version of "The System", the New World Order, enslavement through thought control. Through our belief in the constructs of "The System", we are broken up into individuals (in-divide-u-all-s) so that we cannot live peacefully together and need "The System" to provide the "Oneness" glue that binds us all together. This is the ascension glue and the rapture glue, trapping everyone in a scam of thought control. It doesn't matter to those behind "The System" who dies, it is all about control of those who remain under the control of "The System". The "Oneness" glue needs to be constantly updated which is why we need to watch the news, keep going to church or meetings, read the latest books and keep up with the newspapers. We must be kept plugged in so our strings can be pulled by the master puppeteers. Whenever the current fairytale wears out, the scenery and the props are changed and we are given our new roles in the latest version of the fairytale. This is what has been going on for thousands of years. We are being directed on the stage of LIFE, your LIFE, your childrens lives, everyones LIFE.

The "Bad Guys" remote control the drones to create the chaos while the "Good Guys" remote control the Remedy. The remote control drone dropping missiles at the press of a button is no different from us; we receive the information of chaos from whatever source we are attracted to, whether the New Age, religion, channellers, conspiracy theories, the newspapers, Hollywood, Disclaimer exponents, etc, etc and this is what we base our lives on. All those behind "The System" have to do is make sure the information they want us to think and feel is available, through their "good guys" or "bad guys", make it tempting, and we will focus on it and create the world they want.

"There are reptilian aliens hiding amongst us and they kidnap people."
"The White Knights of "The System" are going to fix everything for us."
"Those of the light will ascend and aid in the creation of the New Earth."
"The aliens are coming to take over/save us"

We are creating all this, including all the apparitions, demonic silhouette images of reptilians, devils and Pan.

We feed these images (thoughts) with our LIFE-energy to give them temporary-LIFE

See this article: Alien Invasion? Or Just Another CON?:

<http://loveforlife.com.au/node/7851>

The "white knights" Benjamin Fulford talks about are the Freemasonic heroes like the Knights Templars, the "Good Guys" who come out of the same Satanic cabal as the "Bad Guys" such as the Knights Of Malta. When you come across a white knight or a promoter of a white knight, stop and think: what are they doing in your life? Why have you allowed them into your life, into your brain? How does their information benefit LIFE? The 6 billion children brought up in nature would not need these white knights - they already know the truth because it is all around them in the information of LIFE and they are in Paradise.

Until we take responsibility for changing how we think, feel and act and stop waiting for someone else to clean up the mess for us, we are just marionettes, our strings being pulled by whoever is controlling the thoughts we are giving our energy to. Just as the pieces of paper are moved from place to place, we are being moved on our journeys from Earth to heaven, from Earth via our ascensions to higher levels, from Earth to Galactic Federation vessels and from LIFE to after-life = death, no LIFE. We have been had.

What keeps us taking the bait, time after time after time, is that we are not fed only lies. If we were, we would see through the scam. We are fed truths that we are searching for and that we recognise, but they are embedded in lies which, in accepting the truth, we also accept. Just as one tiny drop of black or grey into pure white taints the pure white so that it's no longer pure & sincere. That's what one lie will do mixed in with a mountain of truths. The lie is a tiny hole in a wall holding back an ocean of lies. Over time the lie will open up the hole to allow other lies to enter into MANS thoughts, feelings and actions until the whole wall collapses and MAN is completely brainwashed by the lies.

Whatever we choose to put our focus on is what we create.

There are 1001 people putting images into your brain.

Be very discerning.

We have written much more about the information shared in this article.

Love For Life Mailing List

15th July 2010

Hello Everyone,

Because the Love For Life mailing list and its mail-list server has been under attack for more than four months now, we have had to implement temporary changes by using another mail list server. Each time we send a post or the monthly membership reminder goes out on the 1st of every month, AOL.com (America On Line) is being notified that the Love For Life mail list server is being used to spam its clients, causing our webmasters internet service provider to disconnect service. The Love For Life webmaster then has to go through the red tape gauntlet to get his internet back on line and remove the black-listing of his mailing list server which hosts other mail lists besides ours.

Love For Life Mailing List

15th July 2010

For the last few years, Love for Life has had two main mailing lists, four smaller ones and been involved in many hundreds of discussion groups. We are finding that we simply cannot keep up with all of these so are making some changes in an effort to keep on top of things. We are combining all the addresses on our mailing lists into one so that anything we send out goes to everyone.

Unsubscribe/Subscribe

If you wish to unsubscribe /subscribe

1. Please go here: <http://loveforlife.com.au/content/09/05/14/mailling-list>
2. Scroll down to User Options: Your email address:
3. Enter your email address
4. Then go below Choose an action: and select unsubscribe or subscribe

5. Press Go

6. You will then receive an email from the Love For Life mailing list to confirm your unsubscribe or subscribe request

7. Press reply and make sure the email has been sent to the Love For Life mailing list

8. You will then receive a confirmation email that you have been unsubscribed from or subscribed to the Love For Life mailing list

If you have any difficulties Unsubscribing/Subscribing your email address, send us an email with REMOVE/UNSUBSCRIBE or JOIN/SUBSCRIBE in the subject/header and we will do it for you.

If you do not want to get put back on the Love For Live mailing list, please make sure your email address is not being sent to us by other groups you may be involved in. In our efforts to network with as many people as possible, any new email address that comes to us through discussions, debates, comments, requests for assistance, etc, is automatically added to the Love For Life mailing list. If you find your email address back on the list, please just follow the prompts to remove your address again. We tested unsubscribe/subscribe on three occasions and each time it took less than 1 minute to complete the process. Remember, we are all about freedom, truth, peace, abundance, joy, Do No Harm and "Community Immunity" for ALL. We are not your enemy.

With the temporary mailing list server we are now using, there will be no more monthly password reminders being issued on the 1st of every month. Instead, we will attempt to provide a brief subscribe/unsubscribe message with instructions/prompts at the bottom of all our posts.

The Love For Life mailing list is private, all registrations can ONLY be seen by the Love For Life mailing list administrators, the list is not for sale or given to other 3rd parties. It is not used for spamming and is ONLY used for announcements / broadcasts sent by Fiona & Arthur Cristian or the Love For Life webmaster or someone authorised by us in case of an emergency.

Alien Invasion? Or Just Another CON?

By Arthur & Fiona Cristian
Love For Life

3rd February 2011

Link: <http://loveforlife.com.au/node/7851>

Comments: <http://loveforlife.com.au/comment/reply/7851#comment-form>

It is interesting that there has been a gradual increase over the years of UFO sightings with videos springing up on You Tube and other places and articles "proving" that there is life on Mars, etc. Along with the New Age focus on "higher" levels and dimensions and contact with other worldly beings, our thoughts and focus are being massaged towards the acceptance of the possibility of alien intervention on Earth. UFO sightings are happening all over Earth, in Russia, Israel, Italy, Mexico, Brazil, South Africa, Australia and other countries, giving all of us in our different nations, something in common. As usual, when those behind "The System" want us to think that they are not controlling something, there is very little mention of the sightings in the mainstream media, getting those who want a remedy to "The System" to think they have stumbled onto something not of "The System" that is going to help bring an end to "The System".

In one way they are right; "alien" intervention or invasion is part of the plot to persuade us to let go of the old version of "The System" and be ready for the new version of "The System" when it is ushered in. However, it is all being coordinated and managed by those behind "The System". In this article we explain how aliens and the whole concept of beings from other worlds coming to sort out our mess is just another tactic of those behind "The System" to get us to feel powerless about our situation and to sit around waiting for someone or something else from somewhere else to come and fix it.

We are not going into the technology of how the "alien" ships are crafted, etc, because there are already articles written about this, see: <http://loveforlife.com.au/node/1697> and other related topics here: <http://loveforlife.com.au/node/83> and here: <http://loveforlife.com.au/node/2515> and here: <http://loveforlife.com.au/node/1019> and here: <http://loveforlife.com.au/node/82>. We feel they will also have stealth like craft produced using technology that most know nothing about to really amaze us when they finally unleash them upon us. ALL laser and Project Bluebeam holographic technology, including Reagan Star Wars Laser Satellites, etc, will be used to deceive the people into thinking that alien invasion is happening with large clusters of space ships appearing across Earth, but what there will really be are some man made craft and cloned aliens mixed in with all the holographic images of craft and aliens. We also feel that the new digital cell phone towers that are going up at a fast rate, along with the new digital TVs and digital boxes, are going to be used to generate non-visible, silent frequencies and pulses that will work with HAARP, etc, to create death-ray vibrations to kill billions across Earth. This mass culling will be blamed on alien technology. The Aliens are the new terrorists. Just as Al Qaeda Muslims were blamed for the 9/11 attacks, the aliens will be blamed for the next round of chaos.

Alien invasion is all part of telling us how to think and feel so that we put our energy into the thoughts that they want us to create.

If you use your brain, you will unravel the truth. Just think through the logic.

Alien Invasion? Or Just Another CON?

To us, Earth is not a planet and neither are there any other planets or a solar system or a galaxy etc.

Things are not what they seem.

Everything we see is a LIFE-form, part of our living body of LIFE, and we mean everything.

No LIFE form is apart from us. Just as our toes are part of our head, everything of LIFE is part of our living body.

The Worst Lies

Two lies repeated across all satanic recorded ages.

We are all on a journey heading from somewhere to somewhere and

We are all tiny aspects of the universe at the effect of greater forces than us

Both are terrible lies

We are not heading anywhere and we are not tiny aspects of a universe at the effect of greater forces than us.

These lies are used in all religions, esoterics and occults and they are all black-magic.

These two lies set the scene for alien invasion, the coming of all promised prophets and messiahs and the emergence of a "hero" from amongst us to lead us into the "Golden Age" prophesied by all the holy/spiritual texts. They allow us to be ruled by esoterics and occults which are all based on numbers so that we end up worshipping numbers and believing in duality, the pull of false consciousness. Belief in these lies is also the basis of commerce as we have to believe in the "journey" of numbers, of wealth, from poor to rich, from office boy to CEO, from camera crew to director, from renters to the American dream and the lucky break when lotto numbers go their way.

Belief in all of these makes us powerless because they all rely on our belief that someone or something else is going to come and rescue us, providing us with their "order", their hierarchies, rather than recognising that what we think is what we create and that to change the world, all we have to do is change the way we think. This seems to be the hardest thing for people to comprehend; no matter what you believe, YOU are creating it.

The Truth Of LIFE

Everything of LIFE has a purpose, a role to play in aiding LIFE rolling along here and now. If that LIFE-form (species) was destroyed, it would impact all other LIFE-forms in relationship to it.

Every dream has a creator. Imagine LIFE as a bubble. Living creator thought out everything of the dream of LIFE in great detail, held all thoughts in focus & then filled the dream with living creator's LIFE to give LIFE to LIFE. There in the bubble is living creator co-creating LIFE with all of LIFE. There is nowhere where the thought of living creator is not. Such is the gift of LIFE bestowed to MAN. LIFE is the LIFE of living-creator.

Truth reveals that all LIFE-forms have the presence of LIFE present. This presence is the substance of LIFE. We, LIFE, MAN, can touch, taste, feel, smell, here and see the substance of LIFE-forms embodied with the presence of LIFE. They are always present amongst us. Through contemplation and observation we can access all the information each LIFE-form has to offer LIFE.

Each LIFE-form is a thought of living-creator given LIFE. Each LIFE-form offers MAN access to feel and think what living-creator thought and felt in creating LIFE. The bubble is an intricate web of thought, of information connecting to information connecting to substance connecting always to the presence of LIFE. "The System" calls this web DNA. The whole of the fabric of LIFE is threads of consciousness interwoven. The consciousness is the thoughts of LIFE given LIFE by living-creator. Consciousness is information, is LIFE.

MANS thought is beyond time and space because MAN can place MANS thought anywhere there is LIFE whilst still being present to LIFE. The presence of living creator has never removed its presence because we are that presence and, as MAN, we are always present. We are not heading anywhere because we are all that is. There is nowhere we are not. MANS LIFE precedes MANS thought. Wherever our thoughts maybe our LIFE is. Without the presence of MAN, LIFE will no longer be present. Our presence, MANS consciousness, is without beginning or end.

Severed From LIFE By The Information Of "The System"

In the bubble, every thought has the substance of LIFE embodied. Without exposure to "The System" or to anyone exposed to civilisation, "The System", children can be brought up by nature and know everything living-creator felt and thought because the information is available all around. There is nowhere where the information of TRUTH is not available for our children. All around is the substance of LIFE. Children do not require 3rd parties to tell them how to think and feel because they always have direct access to truth, 1st party to 1st party, unless their brains have been hijacked by 3rd parties who tell them how to think and feel with everything they touch, taste, feel, smell, here and see. "Oh, that is a daffodil, it does this and that and is part of blah blah blah blah.

Conned to accept 3rd party thoughts as truth, our children are brainwashed because they take the 3rd party "The System" information, which tells them how to think and feel, to the LIFE-form now called a daffodil, and place that information over the information the LIFE-form willingly seeks to share with our children for free. It's like putting a hood or a cloak or a potato sack of darkness over the LIFE-form so that our children ONLY think and feel DARK thoughts taught to them by 3rd parties. This is the basis of all Satanic thought, its intention is to block out everything LIFE has to share with our children so they will never remember who they really are, what they are really part of and their true purpose.

Now imagine this blocking out happening with ALL of LIFE. Oh that is mars and that is venus, they are planets and blah blah blah, are going around the sun, part of a solar system, part of a galaxy, etc, etc.....

Instead of our children going directly to the LIFE-form now called mars, 1st party to 1st party, using their brains to contemplate on the information it has to share freely with our children, they have actually fallen into the darkness of a man-made matrix of garbage. This is how ALL fairytales are crafted/imagined into a pretend existence, ALL designed to enslave MAN to fiction, fantasy, illusion and delusion.

Six billion children could be brought up in nature, learning the truth of LIFE from all the LIFE forms of LIFE around them, not exposed to civilisation or to anyone who has been exposed to civilisation. Not one of them would comprehend the existence of a messiah or the need for one because the information about a messiah comes from the holy/spiritual books of civilisation. As LIFE is all there is and the presence of LIFE is always present amongst us, how can something or someone appear from somewhere else not of LIFE to save LIFE? This is absurd!

Living In The fairytale - Where Are The Aliens?

It is "The System" and ALL the information of "The System" that is the hologram, not LIFE, because LIFE has substance of LIFE embodied while all fairytales and all the props, characters and plot lines of fairytales do not. They have no substance of LIFE embodied. They are not LIFE-sustainable.

All fairytales are CON-structs, they do not exist and the information is not found naturally in LIFE. They cannot walk, talk, feel, eat, drink, poo, wee, co-create, contemplate, negotiate, contract, etc. They are all DEAD and need MAN to put LIFE into these CON-structs, turning MAN into slaves and drones. The CON-structs will never have LIFE embodied so they require the ongoing LIFE-sustainability of MAN. We are having to exhaust our LIFE-energy propping up these DEAD-CORPSES, doing ALL the performance and maintenance required.

We are now acting in a fairytale on a pretend stage of LIFE.

Sitting on our parents lap watching fairytale pictures as they read us Alice in Wonderland has us grow up being Alice through the looking glass of garbage. Children get trained to perform (imitate - RE-PRESENT) Spiderman, Harry Potter, etc, running around in costume and title, which acclimatises them/us to continue this scam as adults. As all fictions have no presence of LIFE present, we have been brainwashed/instructed to RE-PRESENT the thoughts of 3rd parties, imitating the presence of LIFE when in fact they have zilch!!!!

We are now in the latest cosmic, galactic version of the fairytale which is being read to us by those behind "The System" in preparation for their new version of "The System" which will be a spiritual, cosmic, feel good (feel god) version of the current system. Hence all the "sightings" of UFOs, the alien abductions, the life on Mars, the cosmic channellings, etc. These are all man made! Those behind "The System" have incredible technology and remote control and remote viewing skills at their disposal - they were making "UFOs" during the second world war - what do you think they can do now? "Space craft" have also been discovered in the remnants of the first versions of "The System", the civilisation of Ancient Egypt which embraced all civilisations across Earth back then, but this does not prove that UFOs are alien made, only that those versions of "The System" had the same technology as the current one. Computers and televisions have also been discovered - does that prove that aliens exist?

Likewise, the depictions of tall "aliens" do not represent beings from other worlds, such as the Annunaki, but MAN before the fall, when we were much taller and stronger, nourished by the clean, pollen rich air with its high oxygen content and fresh, unpolluted, living food, although some probably represent genetically manipulated clones. (see this post: WHO ARE WE, WHAT ARE WE PART OF AND WHAT IS OUR TRUE PURPOSE by Arthur & Fiona Cristian - Love For Life - 2006/2007 - <http://loveforlife.com.au/node/7834>) The pyramids of the "ancient world" that are being discovered across Earth were the first formation of a mathematical grid system to convey the energy of "The System", hence the "lay lines" that are supposed to have "special" energy but are of "The System", nowhere in LIFE being more or less sacred than anywhere else.

The vast amount of heavy metals being sprayed in our skies and pumped into our waters can be used to generate Reagan Star Wars Laser Satellites Project Blue-beam holograms of "alien invasions" guaranteed to promote mass panic and have us all begging for the new version of "The System". Aliens are also easily produced by those with access to the right technology and genetics to produce "alien" clones, thus ensuring that we believe that they are real. Mixed in with the many holographic clusters of alien invasion craft appearing across earth will be the man-made craft with aliens at the helm too. There is so much more to all of this.

There are so many props that make up the new fairytale. The stage is set and all those behind "The System" need is for us to get into character and costume and make it all happen, as has been happening through the rise of the New Age, cosmic-galactic, higher-beings, channelled masters, consciousness movement that has been happening over the last twenty to thirty years.

 The Satanists Ancient Egyptian civilisation first attempt to create their New World Order (NWO). The second coming of Jezeus Christ is actually the Satanist's second attempt to re-create Ancient Egypt's NWO - Jezeus being the biblical, false Anti-Christ/anti-LIFE saviour messiah figure ushering in the Satanic NWO; a one world government, commerce/currency, language, law, military, religion, education, etc. The story of Jesus is a deception to con people into accepting Satan's next version of "The System"; a Christianised, Cosmic-Galactic, 1000 golden year reign, that really is a "Oneness" glue, sticking everyone together by false consciousness.

What Do Aliens Do For LIFE?

As all of LIFE has the substance of LIFE we can visit the ancestors of any LIFE-form buried in the soil, etc, etc. We can experience where their children play, where they rest and what they do as their role in aiding LIFE rolling along here and now. Our children can contemplate on any LIFE-form to gain access to the information they offer freely to us.

Everything of LIFE has substance; nothing of LIFE is INVISIBLE and it is NEVER A SECRET. We can experience it and our children can contemplate on it and learn from it. What about aliens? UFOs? What information can our children learn from them without us telling them how to think and feel about them? Where is the information of aliens and UFOs available for ALL at ALL times?

Would we all suffer, if not fade away and die, if they did not exist???

As everything of LIFE is interconnected and interdependent to co-create LIFE as a team effort, what about these alien visitors to LIFE? Where is their connection to the web of LIFE that we can touch, taste, feel, smell, hear and see?

Nature is perfection. When a life-form wavers from perfection another life-form transmutes it to maintain perfection, the love for LIFE. The dream of LIFE will die if they don't create these gifts for LIFE. Nature is not dog-eats-dog, survival of the fittest. These are lies. Instinctively a creature will transmute MAN when their instincts instruct them to. Our Anti-Life distortion invites them in to transmute us as they sense imperfection. Nature will never harm pure & sincere MAN. Everything of LIFE transmutes LIFE; when we breath the air, we change it, when we eat a plant, we change it. However, MAN does not need to kill and eat old or sick animals because nature already takes care of that and because to do so is detrimental to our health. MANS role is to be free to contemplate on and expand LIFE. What is the role of aliens in the living dream of LIFE?

All the constructs of "The System" are invisible. We can destroy a mountain to build a physical image of a Supreme Court, but the Supreme Court still does not exist and is therefore invisible. All we can see is the destroyed mountain turned into an organised pile of bricks but it has no LIFE, it is dead and, if left alone, will crumble away to dust. What about UFO's?

The Satanic Trap - The Scam Of The Ages

Whose thoughts are you thinking. If they can get you to think and feel what they want you to think and feel and get you to put your energy, your LIFE, into these feelings and thoughts, you will create a world in their image. Slaves willingly create a world in their masters image without realising. If the fairytale that you believe in tells you the two lies at the beginning of this article, then that is what you will create and be a victim to. We all need to use our brains and go where the logic of truth takes us. The smartest easiest path towards truth, one that is fail safe, is the path of Do No Harm. Then its just about becoming more and more conscious each day of the Anti-Life harm we support and cause and learning how to withdraw our energy from such harm-doing.

Removing LIFE Out Of LIFE

All the chaos of harm doing is the result of MAN removing the presence of LIFE out of LIFE. Where once there was the presence of LIFE, only chaos, ANTI-LIFE, is now present. All disease and sickness known to MAN is due to the removal of the presence of LIFE out of LIFE so that LIFE is no longer present. "The System" education, including ALL university courses and careers and ALL fairytales and fiction, which include advertising, Hollywood movies and all the other garbage transmitted on television and the internet is designed to instruct our children to remove the presence of LIFE out of their lives.

The gateway into "The System", that is the HELL of ANTI-LIFE, is removing the presence of LIFE out of our thoughts, feelings and actions so that our LIFE, our brains, are no longer present to LIFE. This is what has become of every man, woman and child who has entered "The System". It is impossible to enter "The System" or stay in "The System" if the presence of LIFE is still present in our lives, in our thoughts, feelings and actions. All fantasy, illusion and delusion, and all harm-doing negative destructive emotions, thoughts and actions, some being arrogance, ignorance, ridicule, abuse, character assassination, greed, selfishness, righteousness, power and control trips, are the effects of Anti-Life and are the incontrovertible signs of the presence of LIFE no longer being present amongst us.

We are removing the presence of LIFE out of the air we breathe, the water we drink, the streams, rivers and oceans we swim in, the mountains we climb and the forests we walk in so that LIFE is no longer present. Anti-Life has become so strong that no creature, plant, soil, rocks or minerals is safe from the genetic attacks of Anti-Life. The food we eat is removing LIFE from LIFE, the drinks we drink are removing the LIFE out of LIFE, the drugs we take are removing LIFE out of LIFE, the cars we use are removing the LIFE out of LIFE and the houses we live in are removing the LIFE out of LIFE. From rejoicing in the living world of nature and doing all we could to nurture and protect it, we have become obsessed with money possessions and what WE need for OUR lives. The lawyers, barristers, judges, law enforcers, politicians, clergy, experts, educators, media representatives, scientists, channellers, new age gurus, etc, etc, etc, are all the men and women whose innocence was stolen and who were taught to become servants and slaves of Anti-Life and their Anti-Life messiah and saviour who is leading them to their eternal anti-life death. A mass culling of LIFE is upon us now.

How Much Harm Is Acceptable?

A little harm is too much harm - a little violence, a little hatred, a little war, a little rape, a little abuse, a little fraud..... How much is acceptable? How much harm do you want in your life? A little aspartame, a little MSG, a little fluoride, a little white sugar, a little flavouring, a little chemtrail, a little drug from Big-Pharma..... How are you feeling today? And what about your children? In every area of our lives we are doing harm; when we wake up in a room full of fabrics manufactured by removing LIFE out of LIFE, showering in water full of toxic chemicals using cosmetic products full of toxic chemicals and dressing in clothes made of synthetic fibres. We live in dead houses, work in dead offices, send our children to dead schools and go to dead movie theatres and football stadiums for our anti-life entertainment.

Our lives in "The System" is really just a production line designed to get us to commit spiritual suicide. Its not a matter of if, its a matter of when. From the bedroom, bathroom, laundry, kitchen, living room and garage, from the driveway, roadways, traffic jams, petrol stations and city pedestrian crossings, from the skyscrapers, careers, fast food outlets, pubs, clubs, New Age life empowerment conferences and Sunday mornings listening to the sermons of Anti-Life priests, we are hell bent on removing LIFE out of LIFE no matter the consequences. We are waiting for the anti-LIFE world to swallow us up, victims to our own non-sense.

Is the penny dropping?????

Instead of the rays of sunlight going outwards they turn back on the "SELF" of the sun and, with the sun only concerned about what is in it for the sun, we no longer see the light or feel the warmth of the sun. All that is left is a black hole of Anti-Life where the sun once radiated LIFE. This is what has become of many of us; instead of radiating our LIFE out for other LIFE forms of LIFE to bask under the radiance of our gift of LIFE, we are turning inwards and thinking only about our own needs, wants and desires. The my, my, my, mine, mine, mine, i, i, i, own, own, own, is killing us; my pteasure, my God, my belief, my faith, my money, my taxes, my debts, my mortgages, my career, my security, my savings, my investments, my standing in the community, my drug highs, my orgasm, my sex, my football team, my political preferences, my fear, my trauma, my loneliness, my unhappiness, my suicide, etc, etc, etc, etc. We are relentless in destroying who we really are.

Is it possible for us to turn things around before it is too late?????

Love For LIFE

If partners put LIFE into a relationship the LIFE of the relationship bounces back two fold to each of them. When 100 members of a tribe put LIFE into the tribe, the LIFE of the tribe bounces back 100 fold & then the love bounces to everyone 10,000 fold. This is the true power of LOVE that is LIFE. We need to form tribes, creating Gifts of love that give LIFE to the tribe. We don't need to be individuals, we are already unique. The LIFE energy is being generated by our LIFE, not by someone or something from somewhere else not of LIFE. How can someone or something else create our lives for us? How can a stranger be responsible for creating our family? How can someone not present amongst us be creating everything around us?

Our LIFE energy, our love for LIFE is what the sun is; it is the love that we have for LIFE bouncing back at us as the sun shares the love of all of us back to all of us without exclusivity or privilege. Just as the love of everyone of the tribe shines over all the tribe, so the sun shines love over all of LIFE. The other celestial bodies are also reflections of the love we have for LIFE. They are all LIFE, just as we are. Imagine Earth of our making when tribes of love spread all across Earth and the impact of our love for LIFE on our children, the birds, the animals, the plants, the trees, the mountains, the air and the water. Imagine the love we create when we stop putting our energy into war, hatred, fear, trauma and SELF-centeredness. When all the LIFE forms of LIFE are bouncing the energy of LIFE, the living creator, to all other LIFE forms of LIFE, their contemplation and rejoicing in LIFE expands the living dream of LIFE so that there is always room for all. The presence of the Gift of LIFE created by our gifts for LIFE is present amongst us.

There is nothing out there that can change anything for us. We are causing the destruction and we can co-create Paradise. The choice is ours.

All the best

Love For Life Mailing List

15th July 2010

Hello Everyone,

Because the Love For Life mailing list and its mail-list server has been under attack for more than four months now, we have had to implement temporary changes by using another mail list server. Each time we send a post or the monthly membership reminder goes out on the 1st of every month, AOL.com (America On Line) is being notified that the Love For Life mail list server is being used to spam its clients, causing our webmasters internet service provider to disconnect service. The Love For Life webmaster then has to go through the red tape gauntlet to get his internet back on line and remove the black-listing of his mailing list server which hosts other mail lists besides ours.

Love For Life Mailing List

15th July 2010

For the last few years, Love for Life has had two main mailing lists, four smaller ones and been involved in many hundreds of discussion groups. We are finding that we simply cannot keep up with all of these so are making some changes in an effort to keep on top of things. We are combining all the addresses on our mailing lists into one so that anything we send out goes to everyone.

Unsubscribe/Subscribe

If you wish to unsubscribe /subscribe

1. Please go here: <http://loveforlife.com.au/content/09/05/14/mailling-list>
2. Scroll down to User Options: Your email address:
3. Enter your email address
4. Then go below Choose an action: and select unsubscribe or subscribe
5. Press Go
6. You will then receive an email from the Love For Life mailing list to confirm your unsubscribe or subscribe request

7. Press reply and make sure the email has been sent to the Love For Life mailing list

8. You will then receive a confirmation email that you have been unsubscribed from or subscribed to the Love For Life mailing list

If you have any difficulties Unsubscribing/Subscribing your email address, send us an email with REMOVE/UNSUBSCRIBE or JOIN/SUBSCRIBE in the subject/header and we will do it for you.

If you do not want to get put back on the Love For Life mailing list, please make sure your email address is not being sent to us by other groups you may be involved in. In our efforts to network with as many people as possible, any new email address that comes to us through discussions, debates, comments, requests for assistance, etc, is automatically added to the Love For Life mailing list. If you find your email address back on the list, please just follow the prompts to remove your address again. We tested unsubscribe/subscribe on three occasions and each time it took less than 1 minute to complete the process. Remember, we are all about freedom, truth, peace, abundance, joy, Do No Harm and "Community Immunity" for ALL. We are not your enemy.

With the temporary mailing list server we are now using, there will be no more monthly password reminders being issued on the 1st of every month. Instead, we will attempt to provide a brief subscribe/unsubscribe message with instructions/prompts at the bottom of all our posts.

The Love For Life mailing list is private, all registrations can ONLY be seen by the Love For Life mailing list administrators, the list is not for sale or given to other 3rd parties. It is not used for spamming and is ONLY used for announcements / broadcasts sent by Fiona & Arthur Cristian or the Love For Life webmaster or someone authorised by us in case of an emergency.

Management Matters

Backing Up Whistleblowers

By Elizabeth Newell February 2, 2011

After another major blow on Capitol Hill, federal whistleblowers might have to look elsewhere for support. A bill that would have increased protections for federal employees who come forward about problems at their agencies looked like a done deal late last year, but it fell just short. Perhaps real change must come from within agencies – from senior managers.

Concerns that the 2010 Whistleblower Protection Enhancement Act would protect those who released classified information similar to what WikiLeaks published put the brakes on the bill before the lame duck session ended in December. The legislation would have given whistleblowers the right to a jury trial and would have expanded protections to those who are not the first to come forward.

Danielle Brian, executive director of the Project on Government Oversight, says the nonprofit group now will focus on getting the protections enacted through an executive order. She says the White House has been open to the idea.

In a way, Brian says, an executive order would be better than legislation, because it would address the leadership barriers to protection. "We've been recommending for years that Cabinet secretaries and the president set the example and show managers that someone at the top of the pecking order can embrace the changes [a whistleblower] is suggesting," she says.

Down the road, a president who does not support tougher protections simply could revoke the order. "But it would be an important message," she says.

Even without an executive order, managers can play a crucial cultural role in protecting and even encouraging whistleblowers. "If a person comes forward and the manager embraces that and fixes it, they should make a big deal of it – recognize and reward them, so there's not a culture of fear," Brian says.

But many managers are reluctant to encourage disclosures about agency abuses or inefficiencies. "Institutionally we find managers thinking they're going to advance by protecting the status quo at all costs," she says.

While lawmakers worried that the whistleblower legislation would encourage more WikiLeaks-type disclosures, in which sensitive government documents were aired publicly, Brian says the opposite is true. Someone who leaks classified information illegally would not be protected under the bill. Providing a safe, internal outlet for disclosures can prevent employees from feeling they have no option other than to go to the media or an organization like WikiLeaks, she says.

In the private sector, companies are bolstering internal whistleblower protections. Some of these changes have come in response to recent legislation that requires the Securities and Exchange Commission to compensate workers who come forward to report corporate fraud. By adopting a similar attitude, federal managers could avoid high-profile disclosures.

Much of the rhetoric around whistleblower protection is framed in a good-versus-evil narrative, with advocates touting the need to protect noble employees who have done the right thing. But perhaps it's the more practical reality that will motivate managers and senior leaders. If supervisors are willing to accept constructive notification of internal failures, then they can protect themselves and their agencies from the public relations disasters that follow disclosures to oversight agencies, Congress, the media or websites willing to publish the information.

Elizabeth Newell covered management, human resources and contracting at Government Executive for three years.

Don't Let Review of Classified Information Safeguards Infringe on Rights

By Bryan Rahija

POGO and other good government advocates are urging the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) to be careful about infringing upon the constitutional rights of employees as it moves forward with a review of procedures to safeguard classified information.

The Obama Administration first ordered agencies to assemble teams to assess their handling of classified information back in November, following WikiLeaks' disclosure of around a quarter million State Department documents. OMB followed up with additional guidance on January 3, which included a list of questions to help agencies conduct their assessments. The agency assessments are due today, but as the good government groups wrote in a letter to OMB Director Jack Lew this afternoon, there are some concerns about the guidance issued by OMB:

For the most part, the guidelines focus appropriately on actual safeguarding policies and practices and oversight measures. Those parts of the review that address personnel security, however, should focus on standards-based and publicly-reviewed rules for personnel security practices.

Some of the suggested steps, however, are not narrowly tailored to the security review's purpose, and may intrude upon protected First Amendment rights. In addition, focusing agency attention on such inquiries could divert agency resources from actions needed to actually improve information security.

For example, one question included in the January 3 OMB memo suggests that agencies should monitor employees' pre- and post-employment activities on websites like WikiLeaks. "Surely pre- and post-employment actions cannot be considered job-related activities that can or should be monitored by government agencies absent probable cause and a judicially-authorized warrant," the groups wrote.

Another question appears to suggest that agencies should consider requiring employees to report any contact with the media, regardless of an employee's access to classified information. As the groups points out in the letter, "Adopting this policy across the board in such agencies would unnecessarily clamp down on the ability of federal employees to openly discuss and explain how the agency is fulfilling its duties to the public."

Last but not least, the groups raised a concern that OMB may be opening the door to profiling employees. "Some of the suggested questions would permit targeting of employees who have complained of discrimination, waste, fraud, abuse or illegality within the agency or may simply be unhappy with their agency or supervisor," the groups wrote. "Those profiles might then be used as a pretext to investigate, fire or otherwise retaliate against employees who don't fall in line or who expose waste, fraud, and abuse to others inside and outside the government."

To be fair, this review of safeguards on classified information is, overall, a logical and healthy reaction to the WikiLeaks disclosures. But it's important that the not-so-subtle suggestions listed above don't lead to policies that curtail individual rights of employees or otherwise hamper efforts to fight waste, fraud, and abuse.

Find a statement by Patrice McDermott, Director of OpenTheGovernment.org, the coalition that helped organize the letter, here.

Indictment Continues Obama Administration's War on Leaks

But charges against former NSA official Thomas Drake show changes in strategy

By Shane Harris

New information in the Justice Department's prosecution of a former intelligence-agency official has raised questions about the government's case against him. And these developments shed light on how the Obama administration is prosecuting government employees accused of giving classified information to journalists.

According to a draft federal indictment against Thomas Drake, a former senior official at the National Security Agency, the government contemplated prosecuting him for disclosing classified information to a newspaper reporter and for conspiracy. The indictment, which was never filed, was apparently prepared by a senior Justice Department attorney sometime in 2009. When it was picked up by a new attorney last year, many of the most serious charges were dropped.

Washingtonian obtained a copy of the draft indictment, which also lists three former NSA officials and an ex-congressional committee staffer as unindicted co-conspirators. All of them, along with Drake, had raised concerns about waste and fraud by senior NSA leaders with a Pentagon watchdog in 2002. The draft indictment, which isn't dated, alleges that they coordinated with each other and Drake to reveal secrets to Baltimore Sun reporter Siobahn Gorman. She wrote an award-winning series of articles that exposed allegations of waste and mismanagement on some of the NSA's most important terrorism-related programs.

In April 2010, the Justice Department formally filed charges against Drake, but of the four crimes in the draft indictment, the only one that remains is "willful retention of national defense information." Compared to conspiracy and disclosing official secrets, the retention case is easier to prove in court, legal experts said.

The government accuses Drake of storing classified information about NSA intelligence programs on his home computer. And while the indictment spells out in detail how Drake allegedly gave that information to the reporter, he's not charged with doing so.

The previously undisclosed indictment offers a glimpse into the Justice Department's evolving legal strategy for combatting press leaks. The Obama administration has stirred controversy and set records by prosecuting five current and former government employees for mishandling official secrets and giving classified information to journalists or outside groups such as Wikileaks. The news about Drake's case comes on the heels of another indictment of a former intelligence official. Jeffrey Sterling, an ex-CIA officer whom the government accuses of leaking secrets about covert operations against Iran to a book author.

Whistleblower groups and journalists have been increasingly concerned about how aggressively the Obama administration is pursuing leakers and the reporters they contact, but they've had little insight into how prosecutors are pursuing their targets because the government hasn't commented on pending cases. Now, the new information in Drake's case opens a window on the government's strategy. It shows that prosecutors are willing to pursue significant but arguably less sexy charges in order to secure legal victories. Proving that someone disclosed classified information and engaged in a conspiracy puts a greater burden of proof on federal prosecutors, who'd have to show that the accused knew the material he allegedly leaked was classified.

"Retention cases are much easier to prove," said Baruch Weiss, who was a federal prosecutor in New York for 18 years. Prosecuting someone for disclosure could also open a kind of Pandora's Box, forcing the government to reveal even more classified information at trial. Dropping the disclosure and conspiracy charges against Drake "could have been an effort to simplify the case, which in any criminal case is a priority, but especially in cases involving classified information," Weiss said.

The draft indictment against Drake was prepared by Steven Tyrrell, who led the Fraud Section of the Justice Department and left the government in early 2010. William Welch, a career prosecutor and the former head of the Public Integrity Section, which handles public corruption cases, inherited the case. Welch ultimately filed the charges against Drake.

Since the case was being handled by Justice Department headquarters, supervising attorneys and senior officials would have weighed in on the decision of how to charge Drake, said David Debold, who was an assistant U.S. attorney in Detroit for 17 years and is now with Gibson Dunn's DC office. "There tends to be greater oversight and supervision that the cases [from headquarters] have to go through before the line attorneys can take them to the grand jury," he said.

Tyrrell declined to comment about the Drake case, as did a Justice Department spokesperson, because it's currently before a federal judge. Welch is now the department's point man on several leak investigations, at least two of which, in addition to the Drake case, have produced indictments.

The official indictment is also notable because it omits any mention of three former NSA officials, who were described in the draft as unindicted co-conspirators. The government now paints Drake as having acted largely on his own initiative when he allegedly contacted Gorman in 2005 and became her source. The government believes that the former congressional staffer, who oversaw NSA's classified programs for the House Intelligence Committee, introduced Drake to Gorman. She is still described in a background section of the official indictment.

The three former NSA officials and the congressional staffer were known to government investigators as early as September 2002, when they wrote to the Defense Department's inspector general that senior NSA leaders had "defrauded the American taxpayer of hundreds and hundreds of millions" by investing in a computer system known as Trailblazer, which was designed to help the NSA pluck valuable clues on terrorist plots from the billions of phone calls, e-mails, and other electronic signals it intercepts on a regular basis.

The former officials and the ex-staffer believed that a rival program, called Thin Thread, could do a better job and would cost "one-tenth or less than the projected several billions of dollars cost of Trailblazer." They also claimed Thin Thread, which was never fully deployed, was "NSA's only real chance to have averted the 9/11 intelligence failure" by detecting the communications of the September 11 attackers before they struck.

Gorman explored all those themes in her articles, citing anonymous current and former officials. The inspector general completed a report on the allegations in December 2004, but it was never released publicly.

The three former officials who wrote to the inspector general and are described but not named in the draft indictment are William Binney, Kirk Wiebe, and Ed Loomis, all of whom retired from the agency in October 2001. The former committee staffer is Diane Roark. Drake didn't formally sign on to the letter, but he provided information to the investigation while he was still an NSA employee. According to sources familiar with the matter, it was clear to all parties that after the inspector general's report wasn't released, their concerns weren't going to get the attention they'd hoped for through official channels.

Whatever contacts the group may or may not have had with the press, federal investigators apparently suspected some of them of having discussed classified matters with reporters. In July 2007, almost five years after the three former officials and Roark filed their complaint with the inspector general, FBI agents raided their homes, removing documents and in some cases computers. Then, in November, they raided Drake's home in Maryland. According to sources familiar with the case, the FBI thought Drake might be a source for a December 2005 article in the New York Times that revealed a possibly illegal program of electronic surveillance in the United States—an investigation Tyrell also led. But instead of finding evidence that Drake was a source for that story, agents found evidence of his connection to Gorman.

Drake has never been accused of being a source for the Times article. At least one former government official, Thomas Tamm, has said publicly that he talked about the secret NSA program with two Times reporters. Tamm hasn't been indicted.
